CARNIVALS AND THEIR EVIL EFFECT

In a Pennsylvania town recently physicians traced three hundred and forty-two cases of certain types of venereal disease to a travelling carnival company. Hazard, Ky., is reported by Dr. J. S. Lock to have two hundred cases as the alleged result of a visit from a carnival company and, as they were supposedly coming to Barbourville Dr. Lock was prepared to order wholesale arrests and quarantine.

"Variety," a theatrical publication, speaks of the carnival as the "sewer of the show business," and tells of numerous crimes committed against girls, even against little children, by followers of carnivals.

Most city "hoops" are protected by the city fathers from the unclean, gambling carnival, but it generally finds the way open to show in the smaller cities and towns where the medical fraternity has to clean up (if possible) the mess it leaves and the jailer has to keep a woman incarcerated (instead of the owner of the show) for indecent exposure as was the case not many furlongs from our own town, or was it our own town?

Ultimately the responsibility for the debauchery of our boys and our girls rests with the public officials who permit rotten carnivals to come to town.

They are generally straight out and out gambling concerns—gambling for which the police would pull our own citizens. The sex stuff that caused the arrest of the woman mentioned is but a part of the boozing, garden-of-Eden sexual appeal that caused the 342 medical cases in Pennsylvania. What a trail of evil this may lead to, it is impossible to say.

Dr. A. T. McCormick, secretary of the State Board of Health, recently stated that Barbourville is fortunate in not having carnivals and his reasons are largely medical.

The best way to fix the matter is to strike at the roots with a sharp axe of public disapproval. Let the county and city pass ordinances forbidding the appearance of any carnival at fairs or in public lots unless the Knox County Medical Association has given the members of it a clean bill of health. Also, that any infraction of the gambling laws shall cause at once the arrest of the offender.

We are glad to report that Mayor Tinsley recently refused permission to a carnival to come here and we believe it was the same one that cursed Hazard.

TUBERCULOSIS

Have you or any of your friends this disease? Do you suspect that you or any of your friends have it? If you do, come and bring them to the free Tuberculosis Clinic to be held at Barbourville Court House on July 17th and 18th. Expert examination and advice given by the men of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association. Held under the auspices of the Knox County Medical Society.

What It Is

The FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM is a great association of banks established by the National Government in the United States. It has approximately SIX BILLION DOLLARS in Resources, has twelve Federal Reserve banks each in a separate district, and nearly eight thousand National and State banks that are members of the System.

The First National Bank is one of these member banks—it will gladly point out, at your request, the distinct advantages of doing your banking business with a Federal Reserve Institution.

HEALTH NURSE ASSURED

Dr. J. S. Locke, executive secretary of the State Tuberculosis Association, went before the Fiscal Court Thursday on behalf of a county nurse who will be under the control of the State Board of Health, and locally under the supervision of a health and welfare league.

Dr. Locke made an eloquent appeal for those who so badly need the services of a nurse in the county. Dr. F. R. Burton, Dr. Leslie Logan and Dr. Wm. Burnside also spoke showing that we have a shortage of physicians and that one visit only often can be made to a sick bed but the fact that a nurse is available means that the doctor's instructions will be carried out, very often to the saving of a life.

Dr. Locke also pointed out the splendid results attained thru the examination of children by the nurse whereby many are saved from blindness, deafness and other permanent disabilities that are caused thru the lack of knowledge that they exist until demonstrated by the nurse.

On Friday the following arrangement was put thru by the Fiscal Court. Dr. Locke promised on behalf of the State Board of Health, to pay the salary of the nurse for the first two months, Mayor Tinsley making a guarantee personally of $25 to go toward a fund of $225 to be raised among the citizens to pay half of the salary of the nurse for October, November and December. On account of shortness of County funds, the Fiscal Court agreed to pay only one half the salary of the nurse for October, November and December, but after that time they have morally agreed to pay the whole of the salary.

This action will bring cheer to those who have the welfare of the county at heart and the Fiscal Court is to be commended on its public spirited action.

FINDS FOSSIL FLOWER

Fossil flowers are such rare discoveries in the United States that finding a dogwood "flower" in a fragment of rock from Glenrock coal field, Converse County, Wyo., is of interest. Dr. F. H. Knowlton, a paleobotanist of the United States Geological Survey, identified the fossil as a species of Cornus, a typical genus of the dogwood family.

There are some forty or fifty living species of the genus Cornus, which is widely distributed over three continents of the northern hemisphere and has one representative south of the equator, a species in Peru.

The dogwood flower just identified is the first one found in the United States. Species of dogwoods first appeared in the middle of the Cretaceous, the geologic period in which dinosaurs lived; in other words the genus Cornus seem to have made its first appearance probably more than four million years ago.

GAS IN 1920

Altho the gas-making industry had great difficulty in obtaining adequate supplies for good fuel in 1920, the quantity of gas sold was greater than ever before, amounting to nearly 500 billion cubic feet, having a value of more than $300,000,000 according to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior. The sale of by-products by gas-making companies was also greater in 1920 than in any previous year. Over 100,000,000 gallons of tar, 55,000,000 pounds of ammonium sulphate or its equivalent, and nearly 125,000,000 gallons of light oil and other derivatives were the principal items among these by-products. The average price of gas in 1920 was much higher than it had been for several years, averaging 16 cents a thousand cubic feet greater for coal gas and water gas and 5 cents a thousand cubic feet greater for oil gas and coke-oven gas than in 1918.

SHOOTING AT HARLAN

Fred Rowland, from the edge of Clay County, was shot twice in the body July 1st while in a pool room. Three men under the influence of liquor entered the poolroom owned by Jackson Gross. They created a disturbance and were ordered out three times, whereupon Cody Long one of the three, shot Gross dead and wounded Rowland.

Long some time ago made his escape from jail where he had been incarcerated it is alleged on a murder charge. He later surrendered and was turned loose on bond.

Fred Rowland, who is a cousin of Dr. S. H. Rowland, will recover, it is believed.

CHAUTAUQUA A SUCCESS FROM ENTERTAINMENT STANDPOINT

The Redpath Chautauqua fulfilled its promise that it would give us a first class series of programs. The people who have attended the various lectures, musicales and the play "Friendly Enemies" have enjoyed them all. There was the usual small deficit to be met by the guarantors and this fact has proved irksome to those who have paid year by year. In spite of this fact, citizens have signed up again for next year, some forty-two in all.

We believe the system of everybody selling all tickets possible and then pooling the loss, if any, is the best one as it did away with selling the tickets at less than their face value, which pretty nearly brought the Chautauqua a cropper and will certainly do so if indulged in another year. The pooling of the loss is the only fair and equitable way as there are a number of outsiders who are less able to dispose of their tickets than are those born here. If these cannot sell their tickets, it means they have to bear a disproportionate amount of loss, if any. Below, we append a coupon for those who have not signed up for Chautauqua next year and who may wish to do so.

COUNTY EDUCATIONAL BOARD TREASURY STATEMENT

Frankfort, Ky., April 22, 1922.
Knox County Board of Education,
Barbourville, Ky.
Gentlemen:

"In response to your request communicated to Mr. George Colvin, Superintendent of Public Instruction, by your chairman's letter of Mar. 8, I began inspecting the financial records of your office on Apr. 4. I could not remain longer than till the close of the week. The amount of material requiring examination and the condition in which the records and papers have been kept are such as to require much more time. Realizing this, I confined my investigation mainly to the present school year, beginning July 1, 1921. This is, therefore, only a preliminary report, but it shows the necessity of a thorough investigation of your county board treasury for several years past.

"Supt. E. B. Hemphill has been both secretary and treasurer of your board and as shown by his reports and records the condition of your treasury from July 1, 1921, to April 1, 1922, including corrections of minor errors made in my presence, is summarized in this County Board Treasury Statement Balance in treasury on July 1, 1921, $1,806.73 Receipts between that date and April 1, 1922:—From State treasury $39,824.84 Sheriff 20,360.57 Graded school R. SMALL TOWN BANDS

Secretary of Labor Davis, who played the clarinet in the town band in Sharon, Pa., many years ago, is advocating the creation of a federal bureau of recreation for the development of instrumental and vocal music, the drama, the theatre and athletics thruout the United States.

"To my mind," the labor secretary said, "there is no greater influence for communal and social good in the American small town of today than the town band. Some of the pleasantest recollections of my life carry me back to the days when I played the clarinet in the Sharon Band. President Harding preserves as one of his proudest recollections the memory of his association with the Marion (O.) Band in the days when he was beginning to develop the character for accomplishment which bore him to the White House."

It is Secretary Davis' idea to have the proposed bureau of recreation co-operate with the states and the individual communities in developing home and community music. —Louisville Herald.

WASHING WEARS CLOTHES

"No man's shirt ever wore out on his back" is true enough. It is undoubtedly the washing process which wears out the material. It takes a certain amount of friction to remove dirt and stains, and the life of any textile is dependent directly upon the number of times, the duration and severeness of the rubbing process.

The landress removes the dirt by rubbing the garment up and down with all the energy she can command on a corrugated washing board. The soap, tho a necessary adjunct to the process, in reality plays a secondary part in the actual cleansing of the material.

On the other hand, in most landries the use of some harmless detergent being forced thru the pores of the cloth, thru the action of the washing machine, merely loosens the dirt and grime from the material and the soap which is added later combines with the particles of dirt and carries it off into a solution, which is readily rinsed and re-rinsed from the clothes.

The actual contact between the clothes and the side of the cylinder is of very little importance, due to the smooth surface of the modern machine. What actual friction occurs is caused by the rubbing of the various garments against each other which of course, cannot be compared in severity with the destructive effect of the favorite weapon of the landress—the corrugated zinc washing board.—Send your clothes to the Barbourville Steam Laundry—they last longer.—Phone 34.—Adv.

As an evidence of his appreciation of the public health work being started in Knox County, Mr. R. E. Bendell, district superintendent of the Redpath Chautauqua, paid a dollar to become a member for this year.

GOVERNOR MORROW ENJOYS TRIP TO DISMAN SPRINGS

Gov. E. P. Morrow had a dandy time during his trip to Dismal Springs. He was a boy again for a few days and fished, swam, loafed as much as the governor of the state is allowed to loaf and enjoyed the big meals served at the Springs with the appetite of his younger days.

On Sunday he delivered his famous lecture, "The Trial of Christ," to an audience numbering over 500 people who came from all directions. Many shed tears as he outlined the life, trial and death of the Master of Men.

Governor stressed the points from the stand of a lawyer and showed that the whole procedure of the Jewish Sanhedrim was illegal and was done by corrupt officialdom while the better element was absent.

The Governor spoke of the wonderful influence which the Carpenter of Nazareth has exercised on mankind thru the succeeding generations by the beauty of his life and his self-sacrifice.

After the lecture Governor Morrow was kept busy shaking the hands of his many friends who congratulated him on his powers as a lecturer.

During his stay at the springs it can truly be said that "a good time was had by all," the Governor included.

UNCLE JOHN SHELL DEAD

Uncle John Shell who had records to prove that he was 133 years old, died at his home on Greasy Creek where he had lived on the same farm for more than 100 years. He made all arrangements for his burial requesting to be laid by the side of his first wife who died several years ago at the age of 122. His death occurred from the infirmities of age he never having been seriously ill in his long life.

Uncle John first became known to the world in 1919 when he took his first ride on a railroad train and went to Lexington to the Blue Grass Fair, later attending the State Fair at Louisville.

In that out of the way corner of Kentucky—a county which has no railroads—the death of Mr. Shell was regarded by all the neighbors as if the parent of the entire community had passed. He retained all his faculties up to the last.

ORGANIZATION MEETING

Of Knox County Public Health Association

At a meeting of the citizens interested in a Public Health Bureau for Knox County, with Dr. J. S.
Locke in the chair, the following were elected as officers for the ensuing year:

President, Earl Mayhew.
1st Vice Pres. Rev. J. O. Gross.
Sec'y-Treas. Mrs. F. D. Sampson.
Mayor T. D. Tinsley kindly offered to attend to the articles of incorporation.

The committee on Constitution and By-Laws: C. F. Heidrick, Rev.
A. A. Ford, Rev. J. O. Gross.

The Bureau guaranteed one half of the salary of the nurse for the months of October, November and December.

Citizens who have subscribed to the work of sustaining a nurse are asked to send their checks to Mrs.
F. D. Sampson, Secretary-Treasurer, or pay the same to either of the banks.

A meeting is called for 7:30 on Monday night at the Christian Church and all interested are asked to be present.

Dr. Lock reported that Bell County is putting on a health service which will cost $12,000 per year and that Harlan is increasing its appropriation from $5,000 to $10,- 000.

A tax of one mill would give us some $5,000 for the work in this county.

Dr. Lock also reported that the Magistrates had offered to co-operate in the formation of auxiliary Health Units and these will send representatives to the meetings held in the city.

AUTO BUSINESS IMPROVING

Automobile dealers thruout Kentucky report the best conditions since 1919, according to word received by J. A. Kauffman, one of our local dealers, from the office of the Kentucky Automotive Trade Association at Louisville.

Mr. Kauffman was notified at the same time of his appointment as County Chairman for this county representing the State Association.
The information in regard to business conditions was compiled from answers to a questionnaire sent out from Louisville to dealers in all parts of the state. Reports from every source indicated that business is better than it was at this time last year and in many instances it showed an increase of fifty to a hundred per cent from the corresponding period of 1921.

A membership campaign will be put on the first week in August, according to Mr. Kauffman, the object of which will be to enroll every automobile and truck dealer and garage man in the State Association.
The purpose of the organization is to bring dealers together in all the branches of the automotive business in Kentucky and to improve trade conditions. It is also sought to favor legislation at Frankfort that deals intelligently and fairly with the motor business, as well as to oppose the opposite sort of legislation.

DINNER PARTY

Emily Minton, of Maryville, Tenn. who has been the guest of Deborah Ryder, and Sarah Flake Cunningham, the guest of Bernice Hum-dree, were honored with a dinner at Mrs. Ryder's apartment in Speed the table were Deborah Ryder, Emily Minton, Sarah Flake Cunningham, Bernice Humdree, Jean and Mary Richardson.

Jim York had his appendix removed at the Logan Hospital Wednesday.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE COMING

Dr. J. S. Locke met a number of citizens Tuesday at the Mayor's office to formulate plans for raising money for the work of the County Health Bureau. It was decided to distribute cards at the Chautauqua Wednesday night the signing of which would mean membership in the organization at $1.00 per year.

The car of Henry W. Bowman was damaged by fire while standing in the alley back of the store Tuesday night after 8 o'clock. It is suspected the machine was set on fire either purposely or thru someone who was smoking taking off the cap of the tank as this had been removed when the car was finally examined. Fortunately the interior of the car does not appear to have been damaged.

deputy sheriffs. No still was found but the old furnace previously used was found.

CITY WATER PURE

In view of the fact that there are several cases of typhoid in town it is of great interest to note that Dr.
G. H. Albright has received word that samples of city water he sent away for analysis are free from contamination. Don't drink well water unless thoroughly boiled.

The Auto Vacuum Ice Cream Freezer

The Auto Vacuum Ice Cream Freezer is divided into two separate compartments with an opening at each end, one for the cream mixture, the other for the ice and salt. It is impossible for ice or salt to seep into the cream compartment, as it so frequently does with old style freezers.

It is absolutely sanitary and easy to clean. No puddles or loose parts to adjust or fasten. Nothing to take apart. Nothing to get out of order. No wooden parts to become water-soaked and absorb all sorts of dirt and impurities.

It freezes ice cream smooth, firm and velvety in 45 minutes without tiresome turning, cranking or other manipulation. The mixture, once frozen, will retain that state for eight hours or longer without replenishing ice or salt.

A great saving of ice is accomplished through the use of the Auto Vacuum Ice Cream Freezer.

been the guests of Miss Roberta Cole the past week, returned to their home in Middletown, Ohio, Monday morning.

Miss Korn, who is a graduate of the Cincinnati College of Music, was unable to sing on account of having laryngitis, to the regret of her many friends she made while here. They hope that she will return again soon and that they may not be deprived of that pleasure.

Mr. Tarr is also an accomplished musician. His music on the banjo, accompanied on the piano by Mr.
Anderson of the Redpath Chautauqua, formerly of the Benson Jazz Orchestra of Chicago, was greatly enjoyed by all who heard them.

These young people enjoyed the southern hospitality of Barbourville to the fullest extent and we hope that we shall soon have them in our midst again.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY
Office of the President

Louisville, Ky., July 11, 1922.

To the Public:

Out of the railroad strike at Corbin, Ky., has arisen an intolerable situation, which we have labored for a week to relieve, but without material success. Now that we are forced to take more definite action, I am impelled by a sense of personal duty, as well as responsibility, to acquaint the public with the conditions at that point. This is done both because I know the people of Kentucky are interested in the maintenance of law and order and also of railway service, and because I am hopeful that publicity will aid in averting what it is feared might otherwise be a serious outcome.

Corbin is one of the pivotal transportation points on the Louisville & Nashville system, being the terminus and junction point of four of its important operating divisions, including those serving the great coal fields of Southeastern Kentucky and Eastern Tennessee. In its shops, round-houses and yards (the latter containing fifty-one miles of tracks) a vast number of locomotives and cars used on that part of the system are constantly inspected, repaired and otherwise kept in fit condition for safe and efficient use. So extensive and important is this work that it required 686 men to perform it. All but three of these on July 1st went on strike—and a most unreasonable strike it is, since the recent reductions of a few cents per hour were made by the lawfully constituted governmental authorities, and still left the men receiving from 40 to 129 per cent. in excess of their wages in December, 1917, when the government took over the railroads.

By the almost superhuman efforts of a few of the officials and laborers the movement of some freight trains, in addition to the regular passenger service, has thus far been continued, but owing to the strike there are standing today in the yards at Corbin and on lines tributary thereto approximately 50 dead engines and 5,000 loaded cars, 90 per cent. of which is coal that cannot move, though many industries wholly dependent upon this coal are, for lack of it, about to shut down.

Corbin is distinctly a railroad town, with a population composed almost entirely of railroad men and their families and those who depend upon their patronage. Naturally, therefore, the strikers have the sympathy of all, including city officials. Practically all business houses refuse even to sell supplies to the company, and carry placards, denouncing any who may accept its employment. The strikers and their friends openly declare that they will not permit others to accept employment with the company at this place. If these threats have the intimidating effect intended, or if, when put to the test, they are successfully carried out, there will result almost a complete paralysis of railway service in that section of the State—a disaster and disgrace alike to the State and to this company, which, of course, must not, and will not, be tolerated.

The situation in Corbin is comparatively quiet, but the price of this outward calm is the stifling of that railway service which it is this company's duty to the public to render. Accordingly, finding that local protection will be wholly inadequate, even the appointment of additional deputy sheriffs having been refused, we are engaged in constructing and equipping a tent camp at Corbin, and will shortly send there several hundred men, comprising the new shop employees and a force of guards to protect them and the company's property. In this action I am sure that we have the support of all those who believe in the supremacy of the law over force, but I thought you were entitled to know these facts and to be given the opportunity to utilize the weight of your concerted opinion in the interest of right and of law and order.

I sincerely trust that there will be no disorder, much less blood-shed. Our men are strictly charged not to violate the law. If others commit crimes, I warn them that no stone will be left unturned to bring them to justice.

I need hardly add that the procedure above outlined is not due to ill-will toward our former employees. On the contrary, realizing that they have been misled and that many have struck against their wishes under a moral pressure which could hardly be resisted, our feeling is one of regret and genuine concern for their future welfare; and we have delayed action this long in the hope that they could see the futility of a strike which, because of its illegality and injustice, is condemned by the whole nation.

Respectfully,

W. L. MAPOTHER,
President.

WEAK, NERVOUS, ALL RUN-DOWN

Missouri Lady Suffered Until She Tried Cardui.—Says "Result Was Surprising."—Got Along Fine, Became Normal and Healthy.

Springfield Mo.—"My back was so weak I could hardly stand up, and I would have bearing-down pains and was not well at any time," says Mrs. D. V. Williams, wife of a well-known farmer on Route 6, this place. "I kept getting headaches and having to go to bed," continues Mrs. Williams, describing the troubles from which she obtained relief through the use of Cardui. "My husband, having heard of Cardui, proposed getting it for me. I saw after taking some Cardui that it was improving. The result was surprising. I felt like a different person."

"Later I suffered from weakness and weak back, and felt all run-down. I did not rest well at night, I was so nervous and cross. My husband said he would get me some Cardui, which he did. It strengthened me. My doctor said I got along fine. I was in good healthy condition. I cannot say too much for it."

Thousands of women have suffered as Mrs. Williams describes, until they found relief from the use of Cardui. Since it has helped so many, you should not hesitate to try Cardui if troubled with womanly ailments. For sale everywhere.

HIDE AND SEEK

By MOLLIE MATHER

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

"I don't see anything interesting about her, or charming either. If that's your heart-crushing maiden Ted, my first impression is, that she's too easily friendly."

This is what Charlotte Winters, coming down the stair overheard one afternoon concerning herself. If Miss Charlotte had come at the same hour upon the following day, she would have heard that same pleasing manly tone withdrawing much of his former statement. But Charlotte did not hear, the amendment, which is often the unfortunate way with gossip. Upon the following afternoon, John Almsworth said to Ted, "Your little Miss Winters is not over friendly Ted, as I, yesterday flippantly concluded. She's just absolutely natural. I realize that, as I am in her company, though she is far from paying any attention to my worthy self; which," added John ruefully, "grows disappointing."

"You see," Ted explained, "Charlie has five brothers who are her admiring pals. It was they, who dubbed her Charlie. So she was grown into a way of treating men in a natural manner as good companions."

"She made eyes at me the first day," John, proudly insisted; and Charlie, again ascending the stair, at the inopportune moment, was in time to hear this last remark.

"Well!" she breathed indignantly and flopped upon the stair. Her old friend Ted had given such glowing accounts of this coming former college chum.

"Old John's a wonder," Ted had told her enthusiastically, "highest notch up in his business career, straight, jolly, kind; and unspotted," Ted added admiringly, "by all the attention women give him. John could take his pick wherever he goes. But does he encourage a girl to believe in a fondness for her which he does not possess? Not old John. Courteous and all that, but goes honestly on his way, until Miss Right comes along.—Then—"

"Myte," Charlie had mischievously interrupted, "I may be that Miss Right. What an honor!"

Such a man was not worth a thought; she would, thereafter, avoid him. A decision once made Charlie Winters invariably lived up to it.

"What," John Almsworth impatiently asked Ted, "is the matter with your mother's guest? Miss Winters runs from me at every turn, and I admit Ted, that the more I see her with others here, the more I like that girl. Not 'heart-crushed,' you understand nor any foolishness like that, but I do want to know her better, have her talk to me as she talks to those silly loungers who drop in every evening on pretense of visiting yourself. Do I appear more homesome than they? or—what is the matter with your tormenting young friend?"

Old John's usually calm tone was sharply impatient. "Who," answered Ted wisely, "may comprehend the mind of a woman?"

It was in the wide hallway that John one evening later, learned the truth, or a part of the truth. By desperate force, he detained Charlie Winters as she was flying past him up the stair. Her small hands were clasped masterfully, and the following tumultuous and amazing conversation ensued. "You shall not run from me always," cried John, trembling earnestly. "What have I done? Why do you dislike me? I love you, love you"; he added astonishingly, himself.

Charlie, snatching away her hands, paused to look back at him tauntingly. "Why, there is nothing interesting about me," she innocently repeated, "Nor charming either. I am merely friendly, even when I do." Miss Charlie gave a charming demonstration, "make eyes at you." Then, she was gone. When John called on the following day, he learned that Miss Winters had left unexpectedly to visit a friend of her mother's in New York city. She had left no address, promising to write. And John Almsworth—the heretofore staid and deliberate—hurried after. A needle in a haystack? Yes.

But John had to keep hunting. Waiting inactivity would be to him now madness. After he had registered at a New York hotel, John made his wildly hopeful, probably impossible, plan.

In disgust with himself and his hopeless reasonings, John gave up the chase. He would go to the club restaurant for luncheon; his usual haunt when business called him to New York. He had vaguely ordered luncheon when a girl's form slipped into the chair opposite his own. "Charlie!" cried John, joyously off guard. The smiling young woman did not resent that familiarity. Then John poured forth the story of his unsuccessful quest.

"I was wiser than you," said Charlie when the story was told, "I came directly to the place where Ted said I would find you."

"Find me?" questioned John. "Or rather let you find me," corrected Miss Charlie. Again she smiled. "You see, I had grown tired of hide and seek, myself."

John's hand captured her's beneath the table cloth. "Charlie dear," he whispered, "and I have found you then, to keep?"

"If I'm not too uninteresting," began Charlie, then relented, in a smile.

LIFE VS. FICTION

By GERTRAUDE HESTON

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

John felt bitter and discouraged as he banged the door of the pretty flat he had prepared so lovingly a few months ago for his bride.

"It's hard enough to get a living and win success, anyhow," he muttered dejectedly, as he hurried down the street, "but I just know I could if I had the least bit of encouragement at home. Lydia seemed so interested and kind before I married her—I thought she'd care—but now all she thinks of is her 'career.' The coffee's cold, biscuits burned, bacon raw, and everything in disorder.

"What if she did get five dollars for that silly story—mandarin stuff. I wonder editors are fools enough to accept it—I'm left to get along any old way. I suppose she sits and writes all day. I'm sure she does nothing for me. She won't even fix herself up so I'll have something good to look at. I guess the boys were right to laugh at me for putting my head in the noose."

At the office his employer looked critically at him many times that day and frowned at careless, listless work. "Looky I did not tell him I thought of promoting him. I'll have to look round for someone else," he said to himself.

At home Lydia yawned and stretched herself. Even the soiled wrapper and hair in curl papers could not wholly disguise the fact that she was young and pretty. Pushing the breakfast dishes one side, she got out her writing materials and became absorbed. The "divinely beautiful maiden with coal-black, starry eyes and raven curls, and in shimmering golden tissue," had just fallen rapturously into the arms of the prince when the bell of the flat rang and Lydia reluctantly went to the door.

It was the postman, and she brought back to her table a pile of rejected manuscript. One after another she read the inclosed printed slips. "So sorry—unsuitable for our publications. This does not mean that they may not possess merit," etc., etc.

One kindly man had written a few hastily pencilled words: "From your story I judge you to be young. My advice to you is to get married and lose yourself in your husband's career; help him win success. You can write later and have something to write about."

Lydia angrily tore up the letter, but the words persisted in her memory. Her pen went more slowly and her thoughts turned from her heroine's starry eyes to the sad, disappointed brown ones of her own John. She tried again to write, but the story became hopelessly mixed in her thoughts with her own life.

"With the fainting maiden in his arms the gallant prince leaped upon his horse and dashed away." "Poor John, he couldn't drink his coffee, and the dinner last night was bum." She opened her wonderful eyes and gazed at him soulfully—"John always used to say I looked so dainty and pretty and now—"

She sprang up and looked at herself in the mirror.

"Well, you are a sight for sore eyes—you'd make them sore! I guess I'm a fool."

She hurriedly seized the manuscript, tore them into pieces and crammed them into the scrap-basket. She then dragged off the wrapper and put on a trim working-dress. She was young and energetic, and housekeeping was a game—so it was not long before the whole place was spotless and in order. She went out and bought some flowers, and when John came home that evening his brown eyes opened wide and the light sprang up in them at the dainty, laughing little wife and the festive board.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Sold all your stories? Made a fortune?"

"No," she laughed. "They all came back. I've decided it's more fun to live a romance. We ourselves will be the radiant lovers and our home the enchanted castle where everything is always beautiful and in order. Will I do for the princess?"

"Bet your life," he said gayly, as he bent and kissed her.

Virtue Its Own Reward.

The business girl was not an official reformer, but she practiced somewhat on a little ragamuffin of a boy. Many times had he slipped off the straight and narrow and as many times had she pulled him back again. When the reformatory threatened she always pleaded with the authorities and kept him out.

Recently the boy came in to call on his benefactress. "Have you been a good boy lately?" asked the B. G. solicitously. "Have I? I should say I have," replied her ragamuffin friend with firmness and fervor. Then, confidentially, he added: "You know, I find you get more."—Chicago Journal.

Statistics About Pins

Until the outbreak of the war no less than 90,000,000 pins were manufactured daily. The largest pin factory of the world is in Birmingham. It produces 36,000,000 pins in a single day. As the consumption of pins is not so enormous large there would soon result a great superabundance of them were not 82 per cent. demonstrably lost. The remainder get worn out by use. It has been calculated that pins lost in one day represent a value of $4,000.

A TALK WITH A BARBOURVILLE MAN

Mr. L. W. Hampton of Barbourville Tells of An Interesting Experience

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give here an interview with a Barbourville man:

"After I had the 'flu' about two years ago my kidneys bothered me," says Mr. Hampton. "They were weak and irregular and the kidney secretions were painful in passage. My back was weak and ached thru the small part just over the kidneys. I was lame and sore in the muscles of my hips and side when I got up in the morning. I got Doan's Kidney Pills from Hawn Drug Co. and they soon straightened me up in good shape. Doan's are a fine kidney medicine and I will recommend them to anyone whenever I have an opportunity."

Good Felt—The Foundation Of Good Roofing

On the quality of felt used in asphalt roofing depends its life; as surely as the security of a house depends on the strength of its foundation.

Flex-a-Tile Roofing is built around a base of Richardson felt—uniform in quality and even in texture. Since 1868 The Richardson Company has specialized in the manufacture of fine roofing felt.

This fabric is asphalt-saturated, then perfectly waterproofed, by a thick coating of scientifically tempered natural asphalt on both sides.

FLEX-A-TILE HOUSE TOPS

When you buy Flex-a-Tile Roofing you buy strength, long life, weather-proof shelter and the beauty demanded for the roof you call "home."

And you'll find that Flex-a-Tile runs the same "all the way through," in a single unit or a car-load lot. It is manufactured to gauge, without hidden flaws. Richardson methods at every step, from raw rags to the finished product, take care of that.

You can lay a Flex-a-Tile roof over old shingling or new sheathing. It will lie flat and stay flat.

Flex-a-Tile Roofing may be obtained in smooth or slate-surfaced rolls; in the form of Standard or Giant Shingles and in a number of other types—each specially suited to one or more roofing purposes.

CONGRESSMAN ROBSON ACTIVE Gives Good Road News

About June 1st Road Commissioner Jos. S. Boggs submitted the road project from Barbourville to Corbin for grading and drainage and the Federal government recently approved the project.

On Monday Congressman Robson appeared before the Commission at Frankfort and the Road Commissioner assured him the contract would let in a very short time and also that they are going to let the contract this year for the surfacing of the road between Barbourville and Bell County.

Mr. Boggs and the commission appeared very anxious to complete the Dixie Highway, running thru Rockcastle, Laurel, Whitley, Knox and Bell and they also ordered work on the roads thru Harlan from Pineville to the Virginia line. At the same time they ordered the road finished between Monticello, the county seat of Wayne County, and Albany, county seat of Clinton County.

They are also building the road from Burlesville, county seat of Cumberland County, to Glasgow, county seat of Barren County.

The pike has been finished from Tompkinsville to Glasgow.

One of the prime causes for the fact that we are not further advanced in road building is that we have not worked together to get the road built. Now that the route has been definitely settled let us have no further bickering but all work together for the highway itself.
